"THE ONLY WAY," COHEN WILL ADOPT IT, MONDAY.

When an irresistible body strikes an immovable object then you have chaos. A somewhat similar condition exists here. The last Monday before Christmas finds us with a stupendous stock of goods—the largest we ever had at this season. The coming together of these two contingencies can produce but one result with a prudent merchant; a chaos or havoc in prices. Expected profits must step aside for certain sales, and the following catalogue of prices is "The Only Way" we see out of the difficulty: Shoppers will please carry small packages with them this week, as our delivery is taxed to the utmost by large packages.

To the Children:

Hurry in your guesses, because we has received on Wednesday night, and all guesses must be in by noon on all guesses must be in by noon on Thursday—Xmas Eve. The prizes will be awarded at 8:10 P. M. Xmas Eve to the boy and girl guessing the nearest to the number of lotters received. Until Xmas Santa Claus will have no regular route, but will walk around different portions of the city. So have your letters ready all the time; you do not know whom you will meet him. Have you seen the life-sized doil and full-rigged steel man-of-war to be given as prizes?

Art Goods. -

Your Prices for Made Garments.

We thought we had struck your prices last Monday, but while the business was 40 per cent, better than last year, it was not what our offerings really called for. Perhaps you were not ready, perhaps the prices were not yours; but, at any rate, to leave no doubt, as you'll be ready to-morrow, we'll make the prices yours. We know enough of these goods to say that never in the history of merchandising in Richmond have such finely tailored, newest style garments sold at these prices.
